

DALHOUSIE FEMINIST SEMINAR SERIES 2016-2017

All seminars take place on 12:30-1:30 in McCain, room 2021

- September 16, 2016: Afua Cooper, Sociology and Social Anthropology
Four Black Women on the Canadian Frontier: Gender, Slavery and the Making of the Nation
- October 7, 2016: Martha Paynter, Nursing
Donor Human Milk in Atlantic Canada: Then, Now, and Coming Soon
- October 21, 2016: Kalenda Eaton, Department of English
Womanist is to feminist as lemonade is to iced tea: Black women novelists and the challenges of literary feminism
- November 4, 2016: Alexandre Baril, Department of Political Science
Crippling trans studies and "transing" disability studies: Rethinking crip and trans* politics*
- November 18, 2016: El Jones, Department of English
Prison abolition in poetry
- December 2, 2016: Lisa Goldberg, School of Nursing
Using caring science as a framework for understanding queer invisibility in nursing
- January 13, 2017: Erin Crandall, Department of Politics (Acadia)
The politics of judicial appointment and gender diversity on Nova Scotia's courts
- January 27, 2017: Lori Weeks, Nursing, and Rina Arsenault, Muriel McQueen Fergusson Centre for Family Violence Research, University of New Brunswick
The Abuse of Older Adults: Intersections of Gender and Age
- February 10, 2017: Roberta Barker, Fountain School of Performing Arts (Theatre)
Death and the working woman: Actresses, illness, and forms of labour on the nineteenth-century stage
- March 3, 2017: Louise Carbert, Department of Political Science
Historiography and hagiography of feminist intervention into Canada's constitution
- March 17, 2017: Catrina Brown, School of Social Work
Women's narratives of depression and the politics of emotion
- April 7, 2017: Erin Wunker, Canadian Studies/English/Gender and Women's Studies
Notes from a feminist killjoy